Alcohol and Pneumonia.

The United States Public Health Service brands strong drink as the most efficient ally of pneumonia. It declares that alcohol is the hand-maiden of the disease which produces ten per cent of the deaths in the United States. This is no exaggeration. We have known for a long time that indulgence in alcoholic liquors lowers the individual vitality, and that the man who drinks is peculiarly susceptible to pneumonia. The United States Public Health Service is a conservative body. It does not engage in alarmist propaganda. In following out the line of its official duties it has brought forcefully to the general public a fact which will bear endless repetition. Best Way to Kill Flies.

The May Woman's Home Companion gives a way to kill flies that beats swatting 'em all hollow. Here it is:

"Take a piece of seven-eighths-inch soft wood three inches square, into which you have driven, near the corners at a slight angle, four eight-penny finish nails. Saw off the handle of an old broom and nail this block of wood to one end of it. Half fill a tumbler with cold water and put in it a tablespoonful of kerosene oil (soapsuds also may be used). Place the tumbler on a piece of wood between the nails and raise it to the ceiling, covering the fly. The fumes of the kerosene oil cause the flies to drop into the glass. The best time to do this is in the evening, at dusk, or early in the morning while the flies are settled on the ceiling.

Tell Us.

If you know of an item or a piece of news, tell us about it. That's what we want. But newspaper men sometimes experience more difficulty in gathering news than one would imagine. This was the case when a reporter in a neighboring town, who a few days ago was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he inquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. "Are any of the family at home?" inquired the scribe. "No, they are all out," was the reply. "Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?" "Yes," said the hired girl, "but that's out, too."

Civilized Men and Cooks.

Senator Reed Smoot declares that much of the world's poverty, misery, drunkenness and disease comes from poorly prepared food. In a talk about the tariff the Senator gave his agreement to the sentiment of the poet that said: "Civilized men cannot live without cooks." He described the American garbage can as the fattest in the world, and followed a denunciation of it with a plea that American girls be educated to cook, by a process of making the culinary art part of the public school training.
